

THE INSYTE STUDY

Management of Parkinson's Disease Psychosis in Actual Practice

Management of Parkinson's Disease Psychosis in Actual Practice (The INSYTE Study) is a 3 year observational study which aims to look into the safety and effectiveness of antipsychotic therapies and other treatment approaches in the management of Parkinson's disease (PD). It will likewise look into the clinical, economic and humanistic outcomes of the treatment approaches for both patient and caregivers in the real world medical practice setting. The study involves answering questionnaires during standard care of the patient.

Patients with PD, who are able to read and understand English, who are willing and able to sign an informed consent can be enrolled for this study. (NCT03152292)

For more information, please contact Giselle Tamula, NP:

giselle.tamula@providence.org or 310-582-7433

Study Principal Investigator:

Dr. Melita Petrossian

