EMBRACING AGING: HELPING OUR LOVED ONES, HELPING OURSELVES

Dr. Scott Kaiser is a rare breed, and he shouldn't be. He's a geriatrician. There are only 7,000 of them in the U.S., even though 10,000 Americans are turning 65 every day.

Part of the reason: Gerontology typically doesn't pay as well as other specialties, so it attracts people who are purely committed to the practice, like Dr. Kaiser. He loves his work because there is so much he can do for his patients, and so much they can do for themselves.

GIVING AT EVERY STAGE OF LIFE

ZBT FRATERNITY AT UCLA DONATES TO PNI'S BRAIN CANCER PROGRAM

Jack Verschleiser, a 2017 UCLA graduate who now oversees the university's ZBT fraternity organization, was struck that two current members David Philips and Adam Enomoto had personal experience with cancer. He wanted to commemorate the pair's successful fights with a donation from ZBT.

Verschleiser was aware of Pacific Neuroscience Institute thanks to his boss. Observatory CEO Jae Goodman is a member of the PNI Foundation Board.

He performed his due diligence, but no other hospitals or treatment centers impressed him in the same way that PNI did. After meeting with the PNI team, Verschleiser, Phillips and Enomoto agreed that they wanted to contribute the fraternity funds to PNI. Normally, these funds benefit multiple entities, but this year ZBT earmarked the full $20,000 for PNI's brain tumor center.

"As a cancer survivor, I'm grateful to give back at every stage of my life," says Enomoto. "I know we'll be seeing more impressive outcomes from PNI in the coming years, and it's nice to feel that we helped contribute towards those accomplishments."
